

I am an African Elephant

This is what I look like.

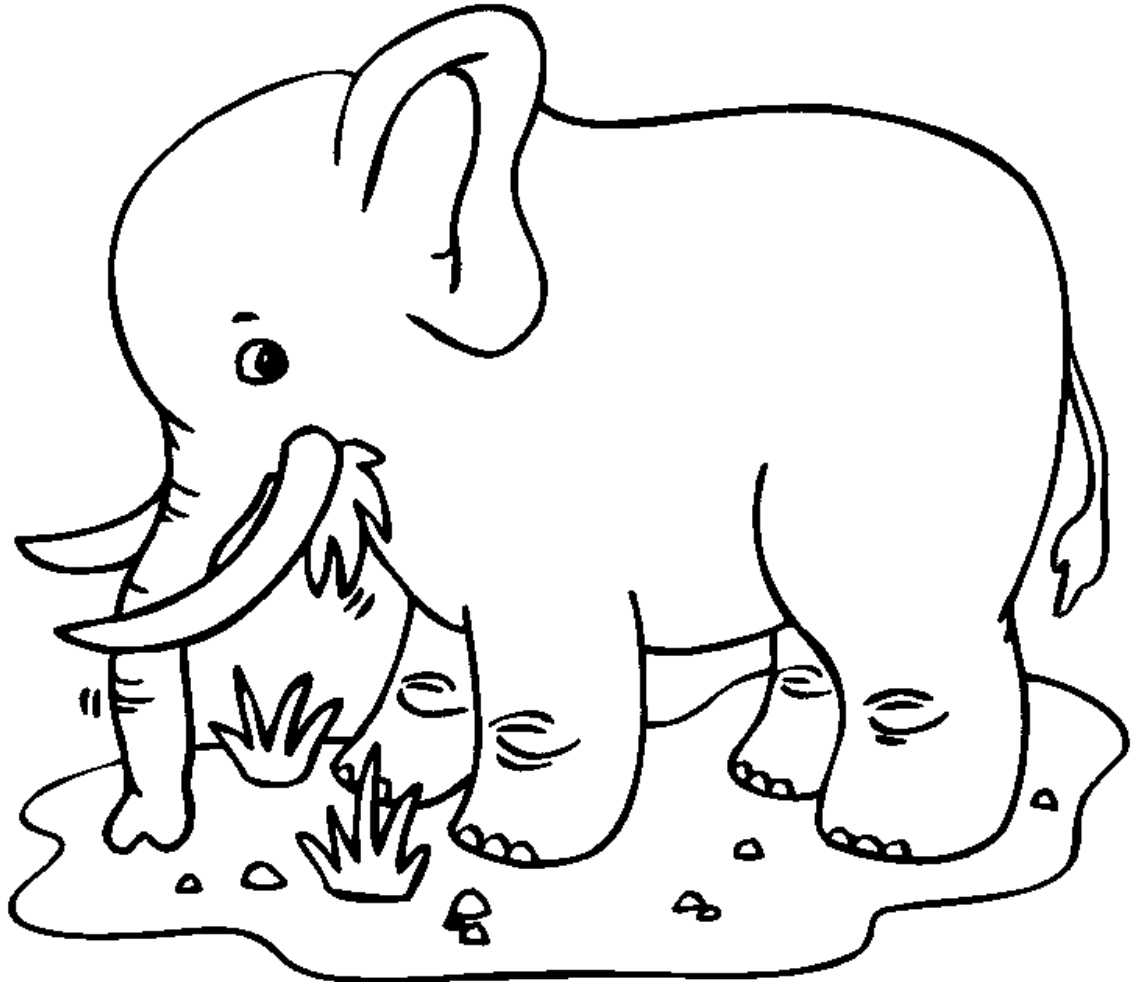

- I grow to be very big.
- I have large ears that can be flapped to keep me cool.
- Both male and female elephants have tusks, which are actually long teeth.
- I have a long trunk which I can use to put food in my mouth.
- I can smell with my trunk, just like you can smell with your nose.
- I have thick, grey, wrinkled skin.

This is the habitat where I usually live.

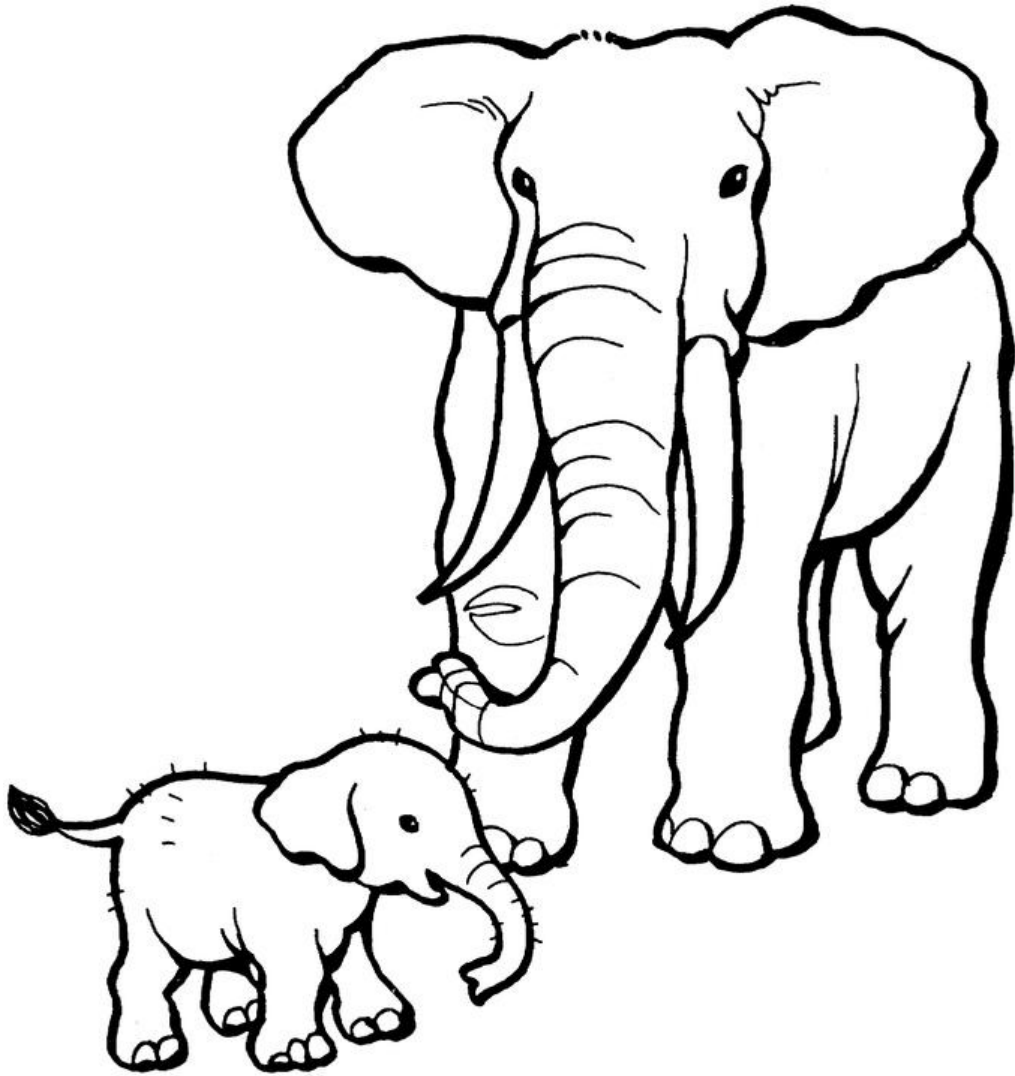

- I live in the savanna grassland plains in East Africa, and sometimes in the forests near the savanna.
- Here the summer is rainy and wet, and the winter is very dry.
- Many other animals live in the savanna area, such as giraffes, zebras, lions and ostriches.

This is what I eat.

- I eat grass, fruit, leaves and bark.
- I am herbivorous, I do not eat any meat.
- I eat a lot of food every day, and I walk from place to place, searching for more food.
- I can pick up a little berry with the tip of my trunk, as well as tear a large branch from a tree to eat the leaves.

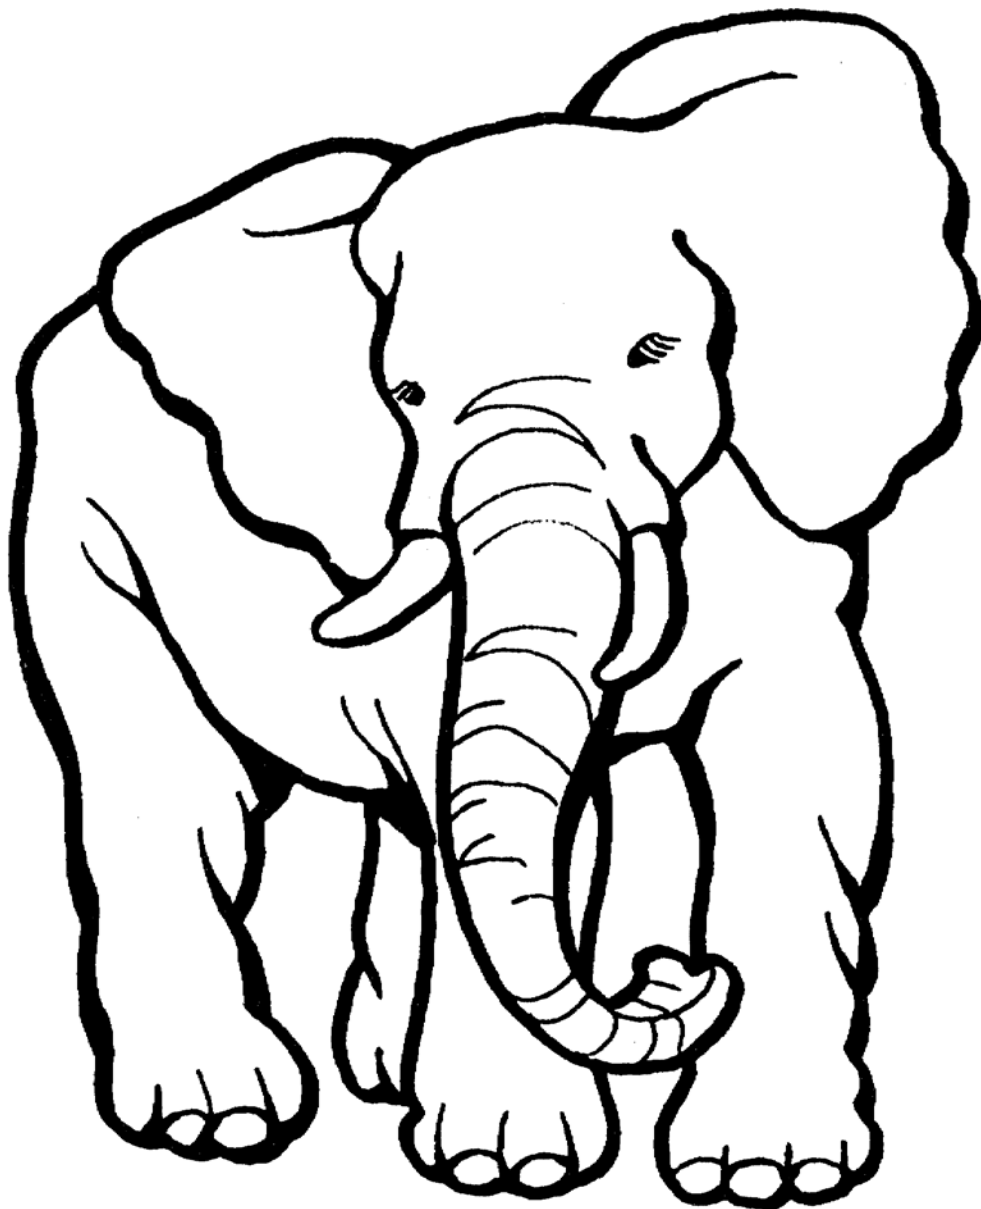

Here are some interesting facts about me.

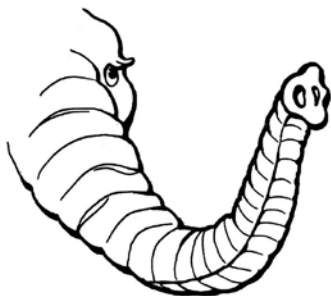

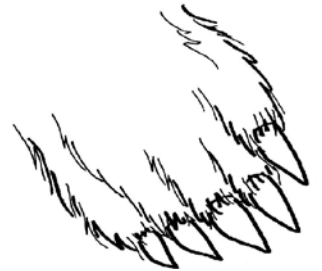

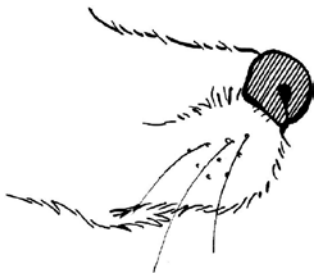

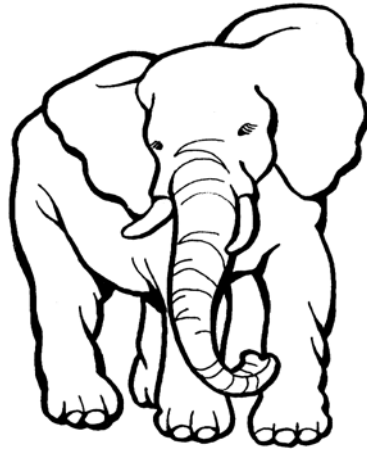

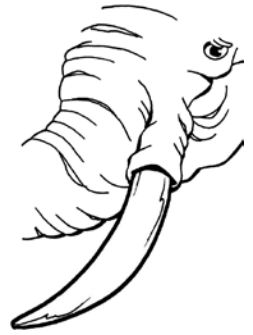

- Female (girl) elephants and babies live in a family or herd, but the males (boys) do not.
- A baby elephant is called a calf.
- I keep myself cool by sucking up water into my trunk and spraying it all over my back.
- Elephants can live until they are more than 70 years old.

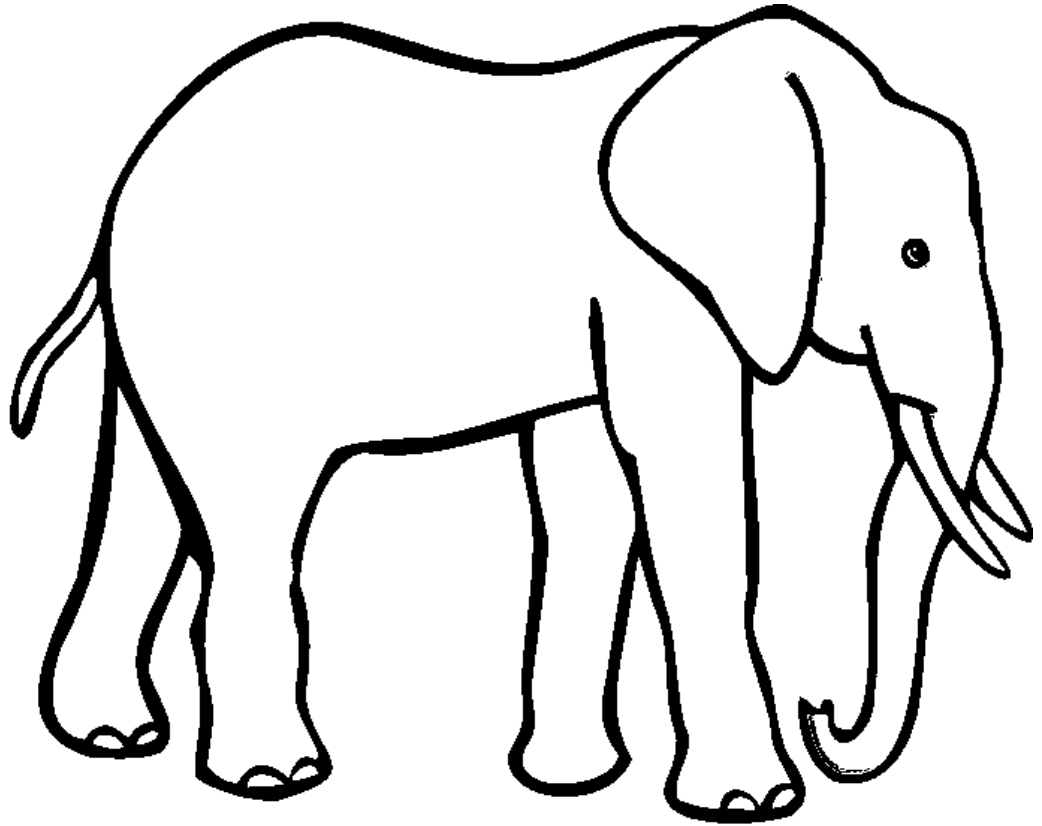

The Wrinkly Grey Elephant

A wrinkly, grey elephant that I went to see,
He had four legs and he was BIGGER than me!
He had two ears so floppy and round,
And one long trunk that made this sound:
E-E-E-E-E-E-E-EEEEEE

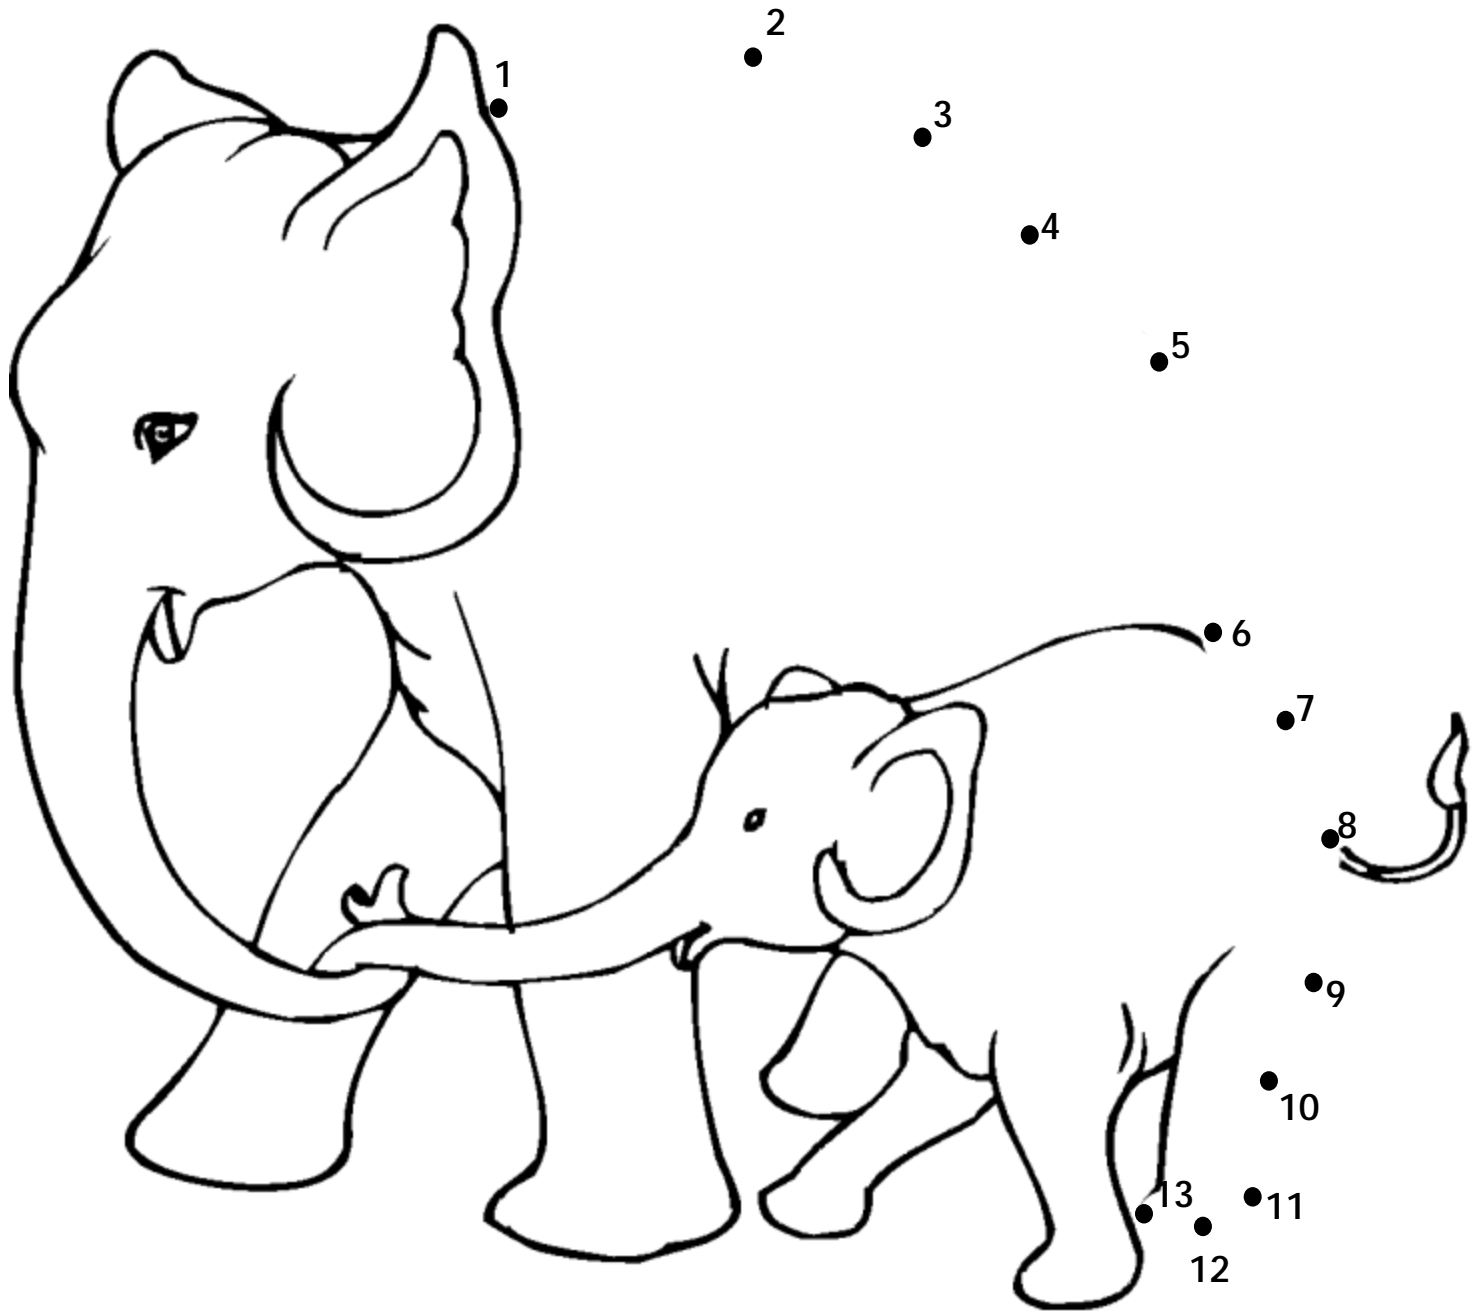

Draw a line to connect the elephant to the elephant features.

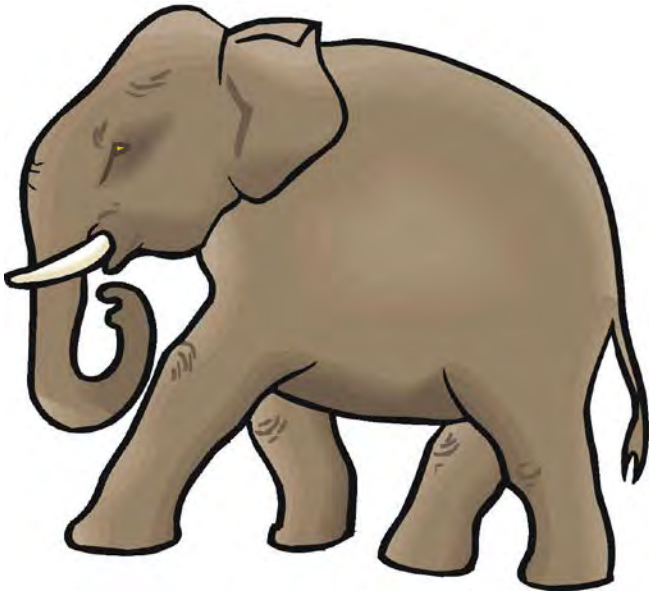

- Draw 1 baby elephant
- Draw 2 trees
- Draw 3 birds
- Draw 4 berries on the ground.
